Specimen A return with a vengeance this year to dump yet another infectious load of corrosive beats & toxic bass all over your soft, modern, green-friendly, compost-bass-bin loving selves. You'll find no recycling here, Spec A make only 100% original & indestructible beats. The new age is over prepare for the second dark age!

It was only a matter of time before the credit crunch caught up with us so in homage to the buzz word of the year and first up on the release comes 'Hard Times' a 130bpm tough-like-2009 breakbeat behemoth. It opens with an electric storm quietly drawing in over the intro before the full on thunder of dark basslines, electronic wobbles & raw beats is unleashed at the drop. The storm clouds swell unleashing epic hands in the air synths in the chorus until the whirlwind breakdown clears away the dead bodies with hoover basses & half time triplets preparing the dancefloor for the second half devastation to come.

Flip for 'Exodus RIP' a reworking of their 2007 track 'Exodus' into a much more ferocious beast. This is ipod fodder for 22nd century marines on the front lines. The dystopian horror theme remains but with sacks full of energy & changes aplenty. The intro & first bassline riff echo the original track until the terror suddenly shifts up a gear with an onslaught of horror-synth stabs & chilling screams before breaking out into a rock fest of wailing guitars, tight drum fills, chugging riffs & machine gun fire. It wouldn't be Specimen A without some proper melody thrown in the mix so true to form there's a soothing half time acoustic ballad providing a brief respite from the assault until the second wave. RIP indeed!
